

Information you need to make informed decisions

April 2017

HIGHLIGHTS

We are pleased to announce the addition of the following journals to our electronic collection:

Nature Medicine
JAMA Internal Medicine
Journal of Biological Chemistry
Journal of Experimental Medicine
Journal of Cell Biology
Science Translational Medicine
Journal of Experimental Dermatology

As always, your feedback is welcome.

Sign up for blog posts to get the latest news you need from the library.

Just because everything is different doesn't mean anything has changed

Spring, with its optimism and energy, is the perfect time to reassess what has value for us, what contributes to our mission. It is also a time to identify what can be shed. It gives us the opportunity to recommit to that which serves us well, and to let go of the things that hold us back.

With that, we have been spring-cleaning. Thanks to the indispensable help of the web team, we have updated the library website. We have also been evaluating the print journal collection. With plans for a new library space, it is necessary that we downsize the bound journal collection. As always, we strive to make the best decisions for our NJH community, to continue to help ensure the rational quest for success, and to find new ways to encourage the non-rational (and optimistic!) pursuit of creative discovery and innovation.

My NCBI, My Bibliography, & SciENCv: My NCBI

The library has a great new guide to help answer common questions about creating and using a My NCBI account. The guide has brief tutorials and links to help you when building a NIH biosketch, linking your bibliography, checking your citations' public access compliance, or registering for ORCID. Get to it from the library home page by selecting the My NCBI, My Bibliography, & SciENCv link under the Subject Guides tab.

Saturday, April 22
Earth Day/March for Science

CONTACT US

NJH LIBRARY
Goodman K104
Phone: 303.398.1482
Library@njhealth.org
nationaljewish.org/library/

Shandra Knight
Liz Kellermeyer
Nitzan Watman

Talking Points

The Business of Health

Health Business Elite

Keep up to date on the latest published research in administration and other non-clinical aspects of healthcare institution management. Health Business Elite contains full-text content for more than 600 journals, including H&HN: Hospitals & Health Networks, Harvard Business Review (available back to 1922), Marketing Health Services, Modern Healthcare and many more. Additional content also includes healthcare company profiles and a rich collection of images, including photographs, illustrations, charts, diagrams, maps and graphs.

Computer technology
Facilities management
Hospital administration
Hospital management
Human Resources
Marketing

This resource may be available for just this year, so now is the perfect time to collaborate with the library on your business information projects. Contact us.

The Last Word

What we're reading now

By Liz Kellermeier

When Breath Becomes Air is the posthumously published memoir of neurosurgeon Paul Kalanithi. Dr. Kalanithi received his cancer diagnosis as he neared the end of his postdoctoral fellowship at Stanford; he died 22 months later at age 37. In the face of his diagnosis, the author is afforded the kaleidoscopic viewpoint of doctor, dying man, and new father, presenting an exceptional perspective on how one weighs the value of life. Though the circumstances of the book are sad, the author spends little time in sappy territory, instead contemplating his situation scientifically, philosophically, and with humor. Don't completely stash the tissues, but the message Dr. Kalanithi presents is worth the time you'll spend with the slim volume.

"Our patients' lives and identities may be in our hands, yet death always wins. Even if you are perfect, the world isn't. The secret is to know that the deck is stacked, that you will lose, that your hands or judgment will slip, and yet still struggle to win for your patients. You can't ever reach perfection, but you can believe in an asymptote toward which you are ceaselessly striving." — Paul Kalanithi, When Breath Becomes Air